accurate diagnosis of the candida yeast species is important because different species have different susceptibilities to antifungal drugs.